1
What are these red fruits?
2
Ochibi!
How unusual! These are wild Japanese peppers!
I thought Japanese peppers were green.
3
The red ripe ones are called true Japanese peppers.
4
These ones are cracked and have a seed coming out of them.
Those are cracked peppers.
5
If you dry the skin and grind it in a mortar, you get pepper powder.
6
And the pestle you use to crush the peppers is made from the wood of the pepper tree.
You can use every part of it, including the flowers and leaves and green fruit, and they're all delicious
7
If these peppers were people...
...they would be geniuses.
